

The story of Grace O'Malley, alias Granuaile, in pictures

Illustrations by D. Rooney, Granuaile. Chieftain, Pirate, Trader, M. Moriarty & C. Sweeney, O'Brien Press, 1988, 0-86278-162-0

1. Grace loved to play cards - one of her nicknames was 'Grace of the Gamblers'.

2. Upset when her father refused to take her on a [sea] trip because she was a girl, the story goes that Grace cut off her hair and donned male clothes.

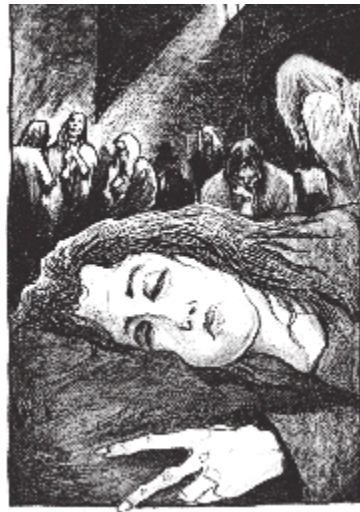

3. Terrified English soldiers flee Hen's Castle as Grace's men pour molten metal down on them.

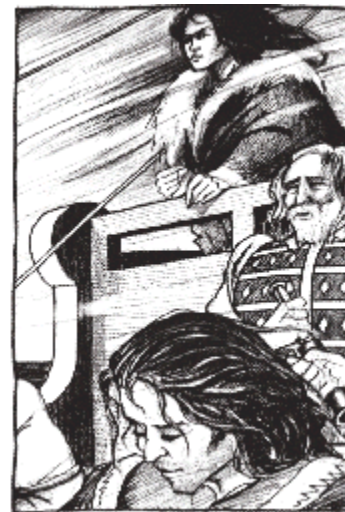

4. Attacked by Turkish pirates, the story goes that Grace rushed on deck and blasted them off the ship.

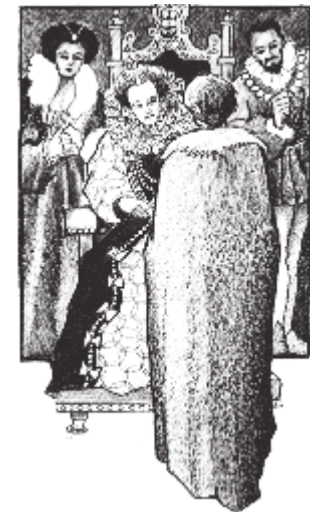

5. Grace and Richard-an-Iarainn meet Sir Henry Sydney in Galway. On this occasion they came to offer their services but not to submit.

6. Imprisoned in the dungeons of Dublin Castle, Grace must have longed to be home in Connaught.

7. An angry Grace sets out for Bunowen to take revenge on her son who had supported Bingham against her.

8. The meeting between Grace and Queen Elizabeth at Greenwich Castle, London.

